Construction Project Slated for Bramhall Street

A construction project necessary to address repeated water intrusions into the lower levels of MaineHealth Maine Medical Center Portland’s (MHMMC) Pavilion building is expected to begin in July and last until November.

During this time, barriers and fencing will be erected along Bramhall Street, from Chadwick Street to the Dana Circle drive. The hospital side of Bramhall Street’s sidewalk will be closed to pedestrian traffic, and the parking spots along that side of the road will be unavailable.

There will be work done daily by excavators, dump trucks and other equipment as contractors install a new underground stormwater drainage system. Work will be done daily from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. MHMMC’s contractors will have signage in place and flaggers deployed as needed.

MHMMC will work to minimize disruptions to the neighborhood. Updates will be posted at mmc.org/modernization.
